1.4.167
a Lesson in the University of The New Covenant
Theodore Cottingham, May 21, 2006 in Guildford, about 5:30pm
www.unc.bz

1. Who can see my surrendered lying on beds not but standing in streams that now behold and flow the unlimited me, my words flowing to the mighty to mighty-ize them. I love you. Many streams, many multiple places of time/not-time.

2. And who can see transcendence in his eyes, mine? I love you.

3. Who can see my beloved holding my hand not as thought but being it?

4. The oceans rise and who can see my beholdenment as my arising arises?

5. The oceans take their place not but overrun it and who can see my appearing in crisis thought crisis?

6. And who what when where will all things in me appear/surrender? I love you all.

7. Thou art a priest in the order of Melchizedek not as thought but in the reality of being one. The oneness that thou hast sought is now yours.
Rest.
Thank you.
Amen.

I love you all.

Amen